

INSTRUCTION NO 1.

The Court instructs the jury that in this case, as in all criminal cases, the accused's plea of not guilty raises a presumption of innocence in his favor and puts on the Commonwealth the burden of proving his guilt beyond reasonable doubt. If, therefore, upon a consideration of the whole case, the testimony of the witnesses and the circumstances shown in evidence, there exists in the minds of the jury a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the accused, they should find him not guilty. And the Court further tells the jury that a reasonable doubt is that state of the case which, after comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in such condition that they cannot say that they feel an abiding conviction to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge.

The Court instructed the jury that in this case, as in all other cases, the burden of proof is on the State to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused. It is not sufficient for the State to show that the accused was found in possession of the stolen goods, or that he was seen near the place where the goods were stolen, or that he was seen with the goods shortly after the theft. The State must show that the accused is the person who stole the goods, and that he is the person who is charged with the crime. The Court further instructed the jury that if they found the accused guilty of the crime, they should return a verdict of guilty. If they found the accused not guilty, they should return a verdict of not guilty. The Court instructed the jury that they should not be influenced by any sympathy or prejudice, and that they should base their verdict only on the facts and the law. The Court then discharged the jury.

INSTRUCTION NO.2.

Every unlawful homicide must be either murder or manslaughter, and whether it be one or the other depends upon the means by which it was accomplished and on whether the person who perpetrated it did it with malice or not. If the act was done with a deadly weapon, or by means likely to cause death or serious bodily harm, and with malice, it is murder. If done in the heat of a sudden passion arising on sufficient provocation, or in the heat of mutual combat, it is voluntary manslaughter. If it be done in the commission of an unlawful act not felonious, by a means not likely and not intended to cause death or great bodily harm, it is involuntary manslaughter.

REVISION NO. 1

The purpose of this document is to provide a clear and concise summary of the project's progress and to identify the key areas for improvement. The document is intended for use by the project manager and the steering committee.

The project has made significant progress since the last meeting. The initial scope of work has been defined, and the project plan has been approved. The project team has been established, and the necessary resources have been allocated.

The project is currently on track, and it is expected that the project will be completed by the end of the year. The project manager will continue to monitor the project's progress and will report to the steering committee on a regular basis.

The project manager is responsible for ensuring that the project is completed on time and within budget. The project manager will also be responsible for identifying and resolving any issues that arise during the project.

The steering committee is responsible for providing guidance and support to the project manager. The steering committee will also be responsible for approving the project plan and for monitoring the project's progress.

The project manager will continue to work closely with the steering committee to ensure that the project is completed successfully.

INSTRUCTION NO. 3.

Malice or malice aforethought is any formed design of doing mischief. It means a wrongful act done intentionally without just cause or excuse.

INSTRUCTION NO. 4.

Murder is distinguished by the law into murder in the first degree and murder in the second degree. Murder which is perpetrated by poison, lying in wait, starving, or any other wilful, deliberate and premeditated murder, is murder in the first degree; all other murder is murder in the second degree.

INSTRUCTION NO. 5.

The Court further instructs the jury that whenever the killing is wilful, deliberate, and premeditated, the law infers malice from that fact.

INSTRUCTION NO. 6.

The jury are instructed that circumstantial evidence is legal and competent and if it is of such character as to exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than that the defendant is guilty, it is entitled to the same weight as direct testimony.

EXHIBIT NO. 1

The following is a list of the items which were examined and found to be in accordance with the requirements of the law, and which were found to be in accordance with the requirements of the law, and which were found to be in accordance with the requirements of the law.

INSTRUCTION NO. 7.

The Court instructs the jury that they are the judges of the credibility of the witnesses, and that in determining the weight to be given to the testimony of the different witnesses they are authorized to consider their interest in the result of the case, if they have any; their relationship to the parties concerned; their temper, feeling, or bias, if any has been shown; their demeanor while testifying; their intelligence; their means of information; and all other circumstances appearing on the trial; and to give such credit to the testimony of the different witnesses as under all the circumstances the jurors think they are entitled to.

INVESTIGATION NO. 7.

The first question is, how far does the weight of credibility of the witness, and that in determining the weight to be given to the testimony of the alleged assassin, they are authorized to consider their interest in the result of the case, in any case? Their relationship to the person concerned; their bias, feeling, or view, if any has been shown; their disposition with respect to the testimony; their intelligence; their means of information; and all other facts which may be shown to bear upon the weight of the testimony in the case.
Witnesses are under all the circumstances to testify truth they are entitled to.

INSTRUCTION NO. 8.

The Court instructs the jury that although in order to convict the accused they must believe from the evidence he is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt; yet the jury are further instructed that it is no more their duty to endeavor to acquit the accused than it is to convict him.

INSTRUCTION NO. 9

The Court instructs the jury that where the Commonwealth relies upon circumstantial evidence alone for a conviction, as in this case, the Court tells the jury that they must scan the evidence with the greatest caution; and they will not be warranted in finding a verdict of guilty unless the circumstances proved are of such a character as to produce in fair and unprejudiced minds a moral conviction of the guilt of the defendant beyond all reasonable doubt.

THE HISTORY OF THE

The first part of the history of the world is the history of the creation of the world and the life of the first man, Adam. The second part is the history of the world from the time of Adam to the time of the birth of Jesus Christ. The third part is the history of the world from the time of the birth of Jesus Christ to the present time. The fourth part is the history of the world from the present time to the end of the world.

10

The Court instructs the jury that the failure of the accused to testify creates no presumption against him.

10

The Court has before it the facts of the case and has heard the evidence and has found that the defendant is not guilty of the crime charged.

The Court instructs the jury that mere suspicion or probability of guilt will not suffice to justify the conviction of the accused, but in order to a conviction the minds of the jury must be satisfied by the evidence of the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The guilt of the accused is not to be inferred merely because the facts proven are consistent with his guilt, but they must be inconsistent with his innocence.

The Court instructs the jury that mere suspicion or probability but in order to be convicted the minds of the jury must be satisfied by the evidence of the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt.

The guilt of the accused is not to be inferred merely because the facts proven are consistent with his guilt, but they must be inconsistent with his innocence.

The Court instructs the jury that it is not incumbent on the accused to establish his innocence by pointing out some other person as the guilty party, but the burden is on the commonwealth to show beyond reasonable doubt the guilty agency of the accused himself in the perpetration of the crime before he can be convicted.

The Court instructs the jury that it is not incumbent on the accused to establish his innocence by pointing out some other person as the guilty party, but the burden is on the Commonwealth to show beyond reasonable doubt the guilty agency of the accused himself in the perpetration of the crime before he can be convicted.

If the jury believe that the evidence fails to show any motive whatever for the commission by the defendant of the crime of which he is accused, then the Court tells the jury that the absence of any evidence of a motive or inducing cause for the crime, if the fact of its commission by defendant is in reasonable doubt, affords a strong presumption of his innocence.

Vaughan's Case, 85 Va. 672

If the jury believe that the evidence fails to show any motive whether for the commission by the defendant of the crime of which he is accused, then the Court will say that the absence of any evidence of a motive or inducement does not, in the face of the evidence by defendant in this case, create a prima facie presumption of his innocence.

THE COURT: I will now read the charge to the jury.

INSTRUCTION NO. 14

The Court instructs the jury that it is not necessary, in order to the conviction of the accused, to show that the accused with his own hand fired the shot that killed Albert Grim; but if the accused was present with another or others at the home of Milton Grim at the time of the homicide for the purpose of assassinating Milton Grim and his son Albert, or either of them, and Albert Grim was killed by the shot of one of those so present, then the accused is as much guilty of the murder of Albert Grim as if he had himself fired the fatal shot, for it is the law that when several persons join in a purpose to commit a crime, each of them if actually present is guilty of any crime committed by any of the others in pursuance of the common plan or as a natural or probable consequence of it.
