Dear Jackie,

I was rather surprised to get that letter from you. I know that it must have been hard for you to even think about me. I also know that you hate me awfully lot.

Jackie, I would like to buy the things that you sent me. I thought that they were meant for gifts. I don't see how you could not take those things back no matter how much you hate me. What do you want to do, give them to some other girl? Jackie, I'll give you the money that you sent me but I would like to buy the other things that you sent me. Timmy and Owen are going to buy that bedroom suite so you don't have to think about me enjoying it. I won't even need it now or ever. I had a lot of dreams once but I know now that they are all gone. I'm not blaming anyone but myself. a person had to live and learn and it usually the hard way.

[Faint, illegible cursive handwriting, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The text is mirrored and difficult to decipher.]

Jackie, I would much rather for you to come over some other time. you suggested Friday afternoon. I would like I suggest Sunday afternoon if you aren't going to be busy. I'll have to get the money out of the bank because I deposited it. If they aren't all right will you write and tell me. It won't take but a minute to get for you to come over get the money if you will let me keep the other things that you sent me.

I know that you will be a lot happier with out me and I promise that I won't try to ever interfere with your activities. you probably have several girls by now that are really what you want. I hope that you will always be happy. My feelings will never change. Don't hate me too much Jackie, I'm not all bad.
